HUERTA HEAD OF REPUBLIC

President Madero Forced to Resign In Mexico.

Nine Days Battle Has Cost Hundreds of Lives--Many Americans Were Killed.

Gen. Victoriano Huerta, commander of Mexican federal troops Tuesday night ended the regime of Madero when he placed the President and his brother under arrest and was proclaimed temporary President of the Republic.

Disposition of Madero has not been fully determined on, but it is probable that he will be exiled. The plan suggested is to escort him to Vera Cruz and there give him his choice of ships sailing to various countries.

With the seizure of Madero and his brother and other high officials of state the censorship of the cable was lifted and the carnage of the last nine days is at last temporarily ended.

While the American State Department breathes freer there is yet the worry of reconstruction days, but this probably will be left for the administration of President-elect Wilson to bear. Meantime the marine force will be sent to Guantanamo, Cuba, to await developments.

The nine days' battle has cost hundreds of lives and thousands have been maimed. Among the dead and wounded are many Americans. The property damage will easily reach $35,000,000.

The only danger of a renewal of conflict now lies with the smaller forces of malcontents in the northern sections of the country. From this section Americans are fleeing across the boundary to Texas and other States.

Commanders of small forces in the northern section of the country have expressed dissatisfaction with the conspiratorial resignation of Madero and say they will continue the fight. They furnish the problem of the new administration.

Huerta has been officially commissioned by the diplomatic corps, thus officially establishing his status in the eyes of the Powers.

The provisional president and Diaz are conferring on plans for a union of their forces.

HUERTA HEAD OF REPUBLIC.
Washington, Feb. 18.—With the government of President Francisco I. Madero fallen and Gen. Victoriano Huerta proclaimed President of Mexico, it devolves on American Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson at once to treat with the de facto Mexican government for protection of Americans throughout the republic.

Political recognition of the government which emerged tonight out of the travail through which Mexico has passed during the last two years, will be a slower proceeding. But with general Americans killed, and many wounded by bullets of the contending forces in Mexico City, with hundreds wounded and thousands rendered homeless because of the slaying and carnage which have resulted from the short range firing in the city, Mr. Wilson's first duty will be to treat with the new President for amelioration of the conditions imposed upon Americans and other foreigners, especially since the revolution entered its last stages.

While this Government will take no concern over the choice of a successor to President Madero such a successor will have to demonstrate his ability to maintain stable government before political recognition will be accorded him by the United States.

Mexico is today honeycombed and torn asunder by many revolutionary movements. The principle of these are the Orozco movement in the north and the Zapata uprising in the south. Lewiscans have become fierce and robber bands, masquerading as revolutionists have sent terror through the States of Mexico from Rio Grande to Yucatan.

In order to lay claim to political recognition from this government, this government will demand that the new President, be he Gen. Huerta or some other, must put an end to these elements, restore order and establish the workings of justice in the States.

The formality of political recognition, in all likelihood will fail to the Administration of President-elect Wilson. There would hardly be time for negotiation in the remaining few days of President Taft's term of office.

In the event that Ambassador Wilson's term as representative of the United States in Mexico's capital should close with the Administration which sent him there, it would first be necessary for the President of the United States to appoint his successor.

This diplomat, when properly accredited to the Mexican government, would be in a position to further the negotiations incidental to the recognition of the new Mexican regime, when that government has demonstrated its ability to enforce the law.

The news tonight found this government still firm in its policy of nonintervention and unwavering in its preparation, upon a moment's notice, to strike an aggressive blow for the defense of American citizens should occasion yet demand it.

Although the change, while, it is believed, will bring relief from the intolerable conditions following in the wake of ten days of bloody fighting, was welcome to those who carry the burdens of state. Official Washington had no comment to make on the outcome.

Dispatches from American Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, confirmed the salient features of Madero's fall and Huerta's rise to power, but State Department officials withheld their opinion. No one sought, however, to conceal satisfaction in the assurance of protection to life and property, which the reestablishment of order in Mexico City would bring to the thousands of Americans and other foreigners for whose safety this Government is responsible before the world.

Although the step which would have sent American soldiers into Mexico had not been taken, every branch of the defensive arm of the service was organized to its highest efficiency.

The word of command was all that was necessary to send troops across the border from the Texas frontier, or to land bluejackets and marines from the six warships already anchoring at anchor on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the disturbed republic.

Two thousand marines gathered all along the Atlantic coast are tonight ready to sail for Guantanamo, Cuba, only a few hours from Vera Cruz, seaport of the Mexican capital.

Every detail in fact, was in readiness had attacks upon Americans, as such, forced this Government to pursue the policy which officials hope will not be necessary.

Among the Lodges.

Hartford Lodge No. 675 F. and A. will have work in the second degree next first Monday night and will also vote on important amendment to the by-laws. Every member is urged to be present.

The following members of Acme Lodge No. 339 I. O. O. F., of Hartford, attended the burial of Brother Jesse King, at Mt. Moriah last Sunday: W. E. Ellis, W. R. Hedrick, James Nance, S. F. Riley, Jeff Ralph, Frank Black and Harvey Sheffield. The burial ceremony was put on in a most impressive manner by Vlee Nobie Grand Ellis, and Acting Prelate Hedrick. The Heflin Camp W. O. W. also put on their burial service.

Rough River Lodge No. 110 Knights of Pythias is at present doing the best work of the Hartford lodges. This lodge has had degree work at every meeting for several weeks, and on last Tuesday night conferred the rank of Knight upon Attorney McDowell A. Fogle in a most impressive manner in the presence of a large attendance of the membership.

Hartford Tent No. 99, Knights of The Macabees are very busy now at present. Work has been put on in some of the degrees for the last several meeting nights, and applications are on hand. The Tent met last night, installed officers and put on degree work. The attendance was large.

YOUTH CONFESSES A BRUTAL CRIME

Says He Killed Consumptive at Hickman to Secure His Money.

Hickman, Ky., Feb. 18.—Declaring that with the aid of Jesse Bunton, of Dukedom, Ky., he killed John Ritchie Saturday night here and robbed him of $110, which Ritchie, a consumptive, had saved for the purpose of paying his way West, C. O. Shelly, a nineteen-year-old boy, is in jail here, and the officers are looking for Bunton.

According to the story of Shelly, who is known as "Dick," he and Bunton had planned by mail and telephone to kill Ritchie Saturday night. Bunton, he said, had not been in the city for some time until the night of the murder, when the two succeeded in tolling Ritchie up the railroad, where they crushed his head with a fourteen-inch bar with a heavy nut on the end of it, and then threw his body over a thirty-foot bluff into the river.

Ritchie's body was found at 8 o'clock Sunday morning and as soon as the discovery was announced a great crowd was attracted to the scene of the killing. Among those in the crowd was Shelly, who gave 50 cents to a fund which was raised on the spot to hunt down the murderer.

Officers learned that Ritchie was last seen in company with Shelly, and a search was made of Shelly's rooms, where bloody clothes were found. Shelly was at once arrested and taken to police headquarters. As soon as he was confronted with the evidence he broke down and confessed. He at first contended that he was alone in the murder, but later implicated Bunton.

Fearing mob violence, the officers took Shelly to Paducah for safe keeping. According to Shelly's story he got $55 and a gold watch, while Bunton got $50 in gold.

Ritchie's home was in Jackson, Tenn. He was twenty-seven years old. Bunton, the alleged accomplice of Shelly, is eighteen.

Mr. Lon Smith for County Clerk.

We this week announce the candidacy of Mr. Lon Smith, R. F. D. No. 6, Hartford, as a candidate for the office of county court clerk, subject to the action of the general primary, Saturday, August 2, 1913. Mr. Smith made the race for county court clerk four years ago on the Democratic ticket and proved to be one of the strongest men on the ticket in that race. His services to the party for many years, and most especially in that race will no doubt make him a strong candidate in the primary.

Farewell to Cannon.

Washington, Feb. 17.—President Taft, cabinet officials, Chief Justice White, members of both houses of Congress, past, present and prospective, and a host of other political and personal friends of Representative Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois, former Speaker of the House, featured the program and guest list of the farewell dinner to him Saturday night.

Plans had been made for approximately 500 guests. It was a feast of fun and a tribute of affection. The program abounded with novel features, merrily announced by the toastmaster, Representative J. Hampton Moore, of Pennsylvania. The dianer was the culmination of plans laid by many weeks ago to make it one of the most notable banquets ever given in Washington.

The scheduled speakers included the President, Chief Justice White, Speaker Clark, Representative Woodward, of Alabama, the Democratic leader of the House; Secretary Nagel, Postmaster General Hitchcock, Senators Root, of New York; Williams, of Mississippi; Penrose, of Pennsylvania; Representatives McCall, of Massachusetts; McKinley, of Illinois; former Secretary of the Navy Hilary A. Herbert, Senator-elect James, and Mr. Cannon.

WANT LARGEST CLOCK IN U. S.

Timepiece Invented By Louisville
Man Is Offered For Sale
At $3,500.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 18.—Jefferson county can have the distinction—if it wants it—of owning the largest clock in the United States, and perhaps in the world. The distinction and the clock will cost $3,500. H. C. Korfhage built the clock and had it on exhibition at the Armory during Home Coming Week. The clock cost him $2,500 to build and as it has practically been a loss of time and money he has decided to sell it now that he has the opportunity.

The Kansas City Auditorium and the San Francisco Exposition have offered to purchase the clock.

Secretary W. E. Morrow, of the Commercial Club and Denny B. Goode, Assistant Secretary of the Louisville Convention and Publicity League, heard of the offers and suggested that the clock be kept in Louisville, inasmuch as it was the invention of a Louisville man.

When the Fiscal Court meets today Mr. Goode and Mr. Morrow will ask the members to vote an appropriation for the purchase of the clock and to place it at the North end of the Armory, where it can be seen by persons entering the building. It is planned to remove the Ahrine design that now decorates it, and insert therein a new one.

The clock is built in the form of a pendulum, and weighs 3,000 pounds. Its face contains 5,500 electric light globes of all colors and shows the time of day without the use of hands. If it were swung from the fifth floor of the Lincoln Building it would just clear the street. It has 11,000 electric connections.

If the Fiscal Court purchases the clock Mr. Korfhage will guarantee to keep it in running condition for five years.

YOUR NEIGHBOR KNOWS his MAJESTIC RANGE uses little fuel—burns perfectly—heats abundance of water good and bad and costs practically nothing for repairs. LET US SHOW YOU WHY. CALL during our DEMONSTRATION WEEK, February 24th to March 1st.

Strews Father's Ashes.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 17.—Complying with the request of her father, A. N. Spinney, of this city, just before his death, Miss Lucile Spinney, an actress at a local theater, scattered her father's ashes into the waters of White River late yesterday. With a few friends, Miss Spinney drove to a short distance north of the city, chopped a hole in the ice, which she had strown with flowers, and dropped into the water all that remained of her father.

Miss Spinney said she realized that it was an unusual thing to do, but that it was as her father had requested and she could not do otherwise.

$25—Reward—$25.

I hereby offer a reward of $25 for the arrest and detention of Israel Jones, who escaped from the Ohio county jail December 8, 1912. He is 5 feet 8 inches in height, weighs about 150 pounds, hair dark brown, about 22 years of age, lisps in talking.

Testing King Road Drag.

Owensboro, Ky., Feb. 19.—An earnest effort is being made by J. W. Cook to test out the good qualities of the King drag on the county roads. Mr. Cook has a road to his farm from Owensboro, but is interested in the upkeep of the roads in his neighborhood. For the past week or ten days Mr. Cook has been giving the work his personal attention, and he expressed much gratification at the results being accomplished. He is operating the drag according to the instructions of the inventor, and the methods adopted by the United States government.

The roads which have been dragged by Mr. Cook have dried out quickly and become solid and smooth, and when they have been traveled extensively the traffic serves to harden the roadbed. Mr. Cook has undertaken the repairing of about ten miles of road in the eastern part of the county, around Ensor, at his own expense; and the inhabitants of the neighborhood are expressing their gratitude in no uncertain terms at the public spiritedness of Mr. Cook. He said that the drag was doing everything for which it had been recommended.

GREAT RUSH OF
EQUITY TOBACCO

When Houses Open In Mc-Lean County.

Enough Registered to Keep Houses
Busy Until March 3—Rush
At Owensboro.

Owensboro, Ky., February 20.—Announcement to the Equity society that deliveries would begin in McLean and Hancock counties was received with a great deal of joy. From reports received from Catoun, Livermore and Sacramento, every pound of Equity tobacco in McLean county must have been loaded on wagons and ready to start to market. At Catoun tobacco was registered that would keep the receiving stations fully employed until March 3. The same state of affairs exists also in the two other points of the county. The Hancock growers, too, were ready and rushed the markets to their limits, and then registered for positions.

Much disappointment is expressed at Reeds, in the edge of Henderson county, at the announcement that no tobacco would be received there for the Equity pool. The American company, which bought the tobacco in that section, has no house at that point, and it will be necessary to deliver the product at Owensboro.

Owensboro was crowded to the limit Wednesday with tobacco. Both of the associations received heavily and a good share of the unpledged crop was brought in. Some few loads were sold at auction, and a good representation passed over the loose leaf house, which held its regular sale in the afternoon.

The Equity receiving plants are congested, and have sufficient loads registered to keep them occupied until Friday evening. The Green River deliverers are more fortunate, as they have more houses at which to unload.

DON'T ask us to give you the $8.00 worth of ware with a MAJESTIC RANGE after our Demonstration Week, as that special offer applied to that week ONLY, February 24th to March 1st.

PEOPLE WHO KNOW are going.

Former Hartford Resident Dies.

The remains of Mrs. Eliza C. Duke, who died at the home of her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Swindlehurst, of Livingston, Mo., Thursday, February 13, arrived in Hartford Monday morning and funeral services were conducted at the Presbyterian church by Rev. Neil, of Beaver Dam. After funeral services the remains were laid to rest in Oakwood cemetery.

Mrs. Duke was born March 22, 1841, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miller, Beaver Dam. She and Thomas S. Duke were united in marriage Sept. 7, 1865. To this union were born five children, three sons, W. H., W. T. and A. G. Duke, two daughters, Mrs. J. E. Swindlehurst and Mrs. Ida Baird, late wife of Dr. A. B. Baird, Oklahoma City. Two sons, W. H. and A. G. Duke, and one daughter, Mrs. Swindlehurst, survive her. Her husband, Thomas S. Duke, preceded her in March, 1898, and daughter, Mrs. Baird, in 1907, and son, W. T. Duke, in 1912. The remains, accompanied by her son, Mr. A. G. Duke, and daughter, Mrs. Swindlehurst and two children, and Mrs. Alonzo Walker, of Louisville, arrived at Beaver Dam Sunday and were taken to Mr. John H. Barnes' residence, where they remained until Monday morning, when the remains, accompanied by a number of relatives and friends, were brought direct to the Presbyterian Church here.

Special Notice.
There will be a called meeting of the Ohio County A. S. of E. at the court house in Hartford next Saturday, February 22, at 10 o'clock sharp. All poolers are urged to be in attendance, as this will be an important meeting.

MODES OF MIDWINTER

BARGAINS FOR WOMAN WHO KNOWS GOOD CLOTHES.

Inexpensive Freshening Will Make Shop-Worn Garments Look Like New—Pretty Design for a Velvet Frock.

The best that the season has to offer is being shown and being worn now, and one really does get admirable bargains now in the shops. If one knows how to buy and can freshen up handsome models in a trifle shop-worn from handling. Many women who know good clothes, but can never afford to buy early in the season the imported frocks while they covet, make a point of waiting until the bargain sales for these purchases.

They usually make a point, too, of buying such things as may be made to do duty all the year around, and that is an easy matter in this day when sheer fabrics are used for winter as for summer.

Naturally frocks of the kind are not so reduced in price as are the regulation winter garments whose tenure is limited, and whose lines may be out of fashion before another winter; but one can pick up pretty afternoons frocks and evening gowns and coats at great reductions, and though these may be a trifle shop-worn, a very little inexpensive freshening will make them look as well as any frock would after a single wearing. And one does get the modishness, and above all, the line, the cut, which the frock or coat cheap from the start does not have.

The velvet costumes and frocks among the best of the season's bargains. This winter's lines are so individual, and, in many cases, so extreme, that holding winter models over to another season would be hazardous business for the merchant. Yet women hesitate to buy exclusive winter models for the same reason.

and the prices must be made low enough to tempt customers into buying for the three-month service still ahead. Both in the small shops and in the large department stores excellent bargains in velvet and velveteen are offered, and in fur-trimmed garments as well excellent opportunities are presented at this time.

Buying cloth costumes at a sale is an art. One needs to go about it according to a system, and not be led away by fancy. If one is buying merely for this winter's use, one has liberty; one buys what is modish and becoming and of suitable price. The very extreme models are usually the most reduced for obvious reasons, and a certain type of woman revels in spectacular effects.

But, as has been indicated, there are frocks that are not spectacular nor extreme, but merely of distinctively cold weather materials, which are marked low.

In the one-piece frocks for afternoon wear there are many pretty designs, both silk and cloth, though velvet plays a conspicuous role. A velvet frock, which is to be worn under a fur coat, should be selected with a bodice almost entirely of sheer material. Under the long fur coats which are so much in vogue this winter, the frock of charmeuse, meler, taffeta or other lightweight silk is the most comfortable and practical for dressy wear, with the useful fine serge one-piece frock for rougher morning wear. Such frocks are being offered at reduced prices in all the shops.

WHEN WIZARDS CUT LOOSE

Compete Among Themselves In Performance of Wonders at Banquet in London.

The wizards at Anderton's hotel at the seventh annual banquet of the Magic circle, under the presidency of Nevil Maskelyne, bore themselves like ordinary citizens for the greater part of the evening. Their rent and extraordinary nature came out, however, at last. The magicians began competing among themselves in the performance of wonders.

Cecil Lyle started his trimming by magic, causing an ostrich plume and some white fox trimming to drape itself on an untroubled hat without the agency of human hands. Chris Hilton manufactured Union Jacks and other flags out of plain colored handkerchiefs. William Dinkes fused a number of billiard balls into one. Herbert Collings produced out of an empty sealed envelope replies to advertisements taken at random from a daily newspaper, while Dr. Herschell carried out a series of uncanny tricks with cards. In an interval, when the normal reign for a time, Miss Sybill Goodchild sang one or two songs. Immediately afterwards, however, the magicians recommenced competing one against the other in bewildering exhibitions of magical skill.

It was self-evident that evening dress, so far as modern magicians are concerned, is a mere deception. Even without the wand, the pointed shoes and the cabalistic signs upon their clothes, there are unquestionably magicians still.—London Telegraph.

TOUCH AND QUICK DEATH

Theater Owner Mourns Sudden Death of His Friend, the Press Agent.

Jake Tannenbaum, who owns a big theater in Mobile, goes to New York two or three times a year and there meets a lot of his friends. One morning before he had left his hotel for a stroll on Broadway, a press agent who had met him in Mobile rushed in and engineered a swift touch.

"Mr. Tannenbaum," he said breathlessly, "I've got to have $20! It's a matter of life and death. Lend me that twenty, will you?"

"That's all very well," replied Tannenbaum, "but when do I get it back?"

"I'll give it back to you at 2 o'clock this afternoon," the press agent reassured him.

"But will you?"

"Mr. Tannenbaum, I'll give it to you at that time if you like."

The theater owner handed out the money.

At 2 o'clock that afternoon Jake walked down Broadway, displaying on his coat sleeve a tremendous band of color. There were tears in his eyes, and if Nobles had been living he could have easily looked like a fit to burst in aversion.

"It's a sad thing," he lamented, "especially to lose up. A young friend of mine, a press agent whom I knew well in Mobile, died some time before I left this afternoon."—Popular Magazine.

Electoral Fight of Phillips.

A person in a highly developed artistic taste always has one or a dozen whole curios have been strung up too tight." This is rather a hasty opinion concerning it, but if any of my readers care to read, or are now residing, with any one who possesses this trait, they will more than likely recognize the point of resemblance.

A little strain or a sudden harsh note is apt to let down the whole thing, and the music of the artist's life will be a discordant measure, just from the effects of one false note. Should the person but have the power to use a little good taste and common sense along with their genius, then the strain will amount to nothing—the notes will sound clear and sweet above the humdrum of life, and the harmony will go on and on, to brighten the lives of all others.

Every living being has a place to fill, and, if they choose, they can fit that place so that their lives will complete and beautify the pattern which an all-wise Creator designed.

PUNISHED.

"Camp life," said the returned war correspondent, "was not without its disagreeable features. Frequently we missed meals because the cooks didn't know the range. Often our meals consisted of hot shot served on the half shell. Even coming back on the transport we couldn't get up card games because the ship had only a quarter deck. Even the men's wages suffered, for when our boat landed we were docked."

The managing editor looked at him in withering scorn, then transferred him to the Wall street office.

"This," he said, "will help you to curb your stock of miserable puns."

IMPRESSION MADE.

It was snowing hard, and the teacher sought to impress upon her charges the advisability of avoiding colds. "This is the time," she said, "when boys and girls should be very careful while outdoors. I had a darling little brother, eight years old. One day he took his new sled and went out to play in the snow. That evening, before going to bed, he complained of severe pains in his chest. The next morning he grew worse, pneumonitis set in, and two days later he died."

The deep silence that followed this tale was finally broken when an aggressive-looking youngster in the rear of the room stood up and inquired: "Where's his sled?"—Collier's Weekly.

EXPERT SAILORS OF SALEM

To Have Sailed With Doctor Bowditch Was Equal to Course In Navigation.

Dr. Nathaniel Bowditch, the famous mathematician, made four voyages in the ships of his merchant friend, Mr. Derby of Salem. Although Doctor Bowditch knew little about actual seamanship, writes Mr. R. E. Penhollow in "Merchant Ventures of Old Salem," he was one of the world's greatest authorities on navigation. At sea he used to instruct the crew in navigation, until all hands, even down to the cook, understood the art. Rev. Alexander Young, in his memorial discourse on Bowditch, tells an amusing incident of the voyage of the Astrea II, to the Philippines.

"At Manila, a Scotchman named Murray asked Captain Prince how he contrived to keep his course, in the face of the northeast monsoon, by mere dead reckoning, without the use of lunars. It was a common notion at that time among British seamen that the Americans did not know how to work lunar observations.

"Captain Prince told Mr. Murray that he had a crew of twelve men, every one of whom could take and work a lunar observation as well, for all practical purposes, as old Sir Isaac Newton himself. Murray was perfectly astounded at this, and actually went down to the landing place one Sunday morning to see this knowing crew come ashore. Doctor Bowditch was present at this conversation, and as Captain Prince says, sat 'modest as a maid,' said not a word, but held his slate pencil in his mouth."

To quote again from Mr. Young:

"Captain Prince says that one day the supercargo said to him, 'Come, captain, let us go forward and see what the sailors are talking about, under the lee of the long-boat.' They went forward accordingly, and the captain was surprised to find the sailors, instead of spinning their long yarns, earnestly engaged with book, slate and pencil, and discussing the high matters of tangents and secants, altitude, dip and retraction. Two of them in particular were disputing very zealously. One of them called out to the other, 'Well, Jack, what have you got?'

"'I've got the sine,' was the answer.

"'But that ain't right,' said the other. 'I say it is the cosine!'

At Salem it was considered the highest recommendation of a seaman that he had sailed in the same ship with Doctor Bowditch. That fact alone was often sufficient to procure for him an officer's berth.—Youth's Companion.

FRANCE'S NEW AERIAL FLEET

Government Spends $5,000,000 This Year on Flying Squadron and Will Spend More Next.

The French government has spent $7,000,000 this year on its aerial fleet, and is planning the expenditure next year of $6,000,000 more. Each squadron will consist of eight machines divided into pairs: two monoplanes, two biplanes, two multiplanes and reserves composed of a monoplane and a biplane.

On the first day of last March the government had thirteen squadrons of this kind, eight in active practice and five in reserve, representing a total of 104 aircraft, but this number was considered too small and it voted to double it with utmost speed practicable.

To each squadron belong nine automobiles. Thirty centers of aviation are to be established, in each one of which will be a school for the training of aviators and a definite point of centralization and departure for each squadron will be fixed.

The separate squadrons will be manned by seven pilots, one of whom Woman Finally Recovers From Nervous Breakdown.

Impoverished nerves destroy many people before their time. Often before a sufferer realizes what the trouble is, he is on the verge of a complete nervous breakdown. It is of the utmost importance to keep your nervous system in good condition, as the nerves are the source of all bodily power. Mrs. Anna Kounz, 211 Mechanic St., Pueblo, Colo., says:

"For many years I suffered from nervous prostration; I was unable to do any house work and doctors failed to help me. Remedies I tried from druggists did not do me a particle of good. A neighbor told my husband about and he procured a bottle. After the first few doses I showed a marked improvement, and after taking two bottles I was entirely cured. I have been perfectly well for years and cannot praise Dr. Miles' Nervine too highly."

If you are troubled with loss of appetite, poor digestion, weakness, inability to sleep; if you are in a general run-down condition and unable to bear your part of the daily grind of life, you need something to strengthen your nerves. You may not realize what is the matter with you, but that is no reason why you should delay treatment.

has proven its value in nervous disorders for thirty years, and merits a trial, no matter how many other remedies have failed to help you.

Sold by all druggists. If lost bottle fails to bring your money is returned.

Charles V. a Heavy Eater.

Lady Montagu's Italian habit of walking at seven to drink asses' milk and then going to sleep again was only a feeble rivalry of the programme of the Emperor Charles V. At five o'clock he breakfasted on a fowl seethed in milk and dressed with sugar and spices. Then he slumbered again. His next meal was at noon, when he dined, partaking always of twenty dishes. Two suppers came later, one after vespers and the other at midnight or one o'clock, the most substantial meal of the four. After meat he disposed of vast quantities of pastry and sweetmeats and the whole was washed down with copious drafts of beer and wine. It took forty years of such feeding to make, not his appetite, but his taste, fail; he then began to find all food insipid.

Lending Aid.

A father and daughter, both vaudeville actors, spent last summer at St. James, L. I., where there is a small colony of stage people. The daughter's stage specialty is impersonating prominent people. She could not swim and every day it was her father's task, for two hours, to try to teach her. The job was a hopeless one, or at least he decided that it was, after a month of vain effort.

One day, thoroughly discouraged, the father let go of the daughter's belt. Down she went toward the bottom. As she came up and prepared to scream the father roared at her: "Can't you think of some prominent fish?"

UMBRELLA ALWAYS AT HAND

For Small Sum, Subscriber Is Guaranteed Protection From the Sudden Shower.

The Belgians have just founded a company whose originality will be hard to beat. This is the Umbrella Lending society.

The company has a capital of several million francs, and half as many umbrellas and its object is to save people from the trouble of buying and carrying these occasionally useful but cumbersome articles about when not in actual employ.

Subscribers pay $1 a year, and are given an aluminum counter with a number. It is much easier evidently to carry a counter than an umbrella.

If the subscriber is caught in the rain all that he has to do is to go into the nearest restaurant, tobacco shop, or big store, and in return for his ticket he is immediately furnished with a respectable umbrella.

When the sun comes out again he enters the first similar establishment and deposits his umbrella in exchange for another counter.—Savvy Stories.

Concerning Apple Pie.

If you ask a man what sort of pie he will take, and he be honest a moment, he is pretty sure to blurt out apple. That is always a sure thing. Custard, lemon, peach, blackberry, mince, all depend; there is always some doubt as to their manufacture and the quality of the confectionists; but with apple pie it is not so. Apple pie is itself; it remains in its own right. It suggests no doubt; it is always safe. Therefore it will be gratifying news that the apple crop this year is a bumper. There will be a yield of 15,000,000 bushels. That will make about sixty pies to every man, woman and child in the country; and this will give an ordinary piece of pie to every inhabitant every day in the year. Was there ever a nation so highly favored that it could have apple pie for every person every day? Thus nature and enterprise kindly and bountifully minister to the taste of all the people.—Ohio State Journal.

The Going of Ulysses.

A Kansas City man said he always preferred red-headed office boys to any other kind, as he had found them to be unusually sanguine and alert; but he discovered recently that some of them are too much so. One day, returning from a short out-of-town trip, he went to his office and mentioned interrogatively that Ulysses, his promising assistant, was nowhere in sight, and the stenographer replied that he had not been seen.

Lifting up the last mail on his desk he found a note addressed to him in a very familiar, broad, vertical handwriting.

"Dear Mr. Cross," he said, "please accept my resignation to take effect yesterday. I got a better place with less work and more pay. Respectfully yours, S. G. PARKER."

Dickens in Australia.

It is said that when a Scotsman leaves old Scotia to make his home in some other land he solices his exile with the book of Robert Burns' poems, and that the Scot abroad comes to be even better versed in the rhymes of the peasant poet than the Scot who has remained at home. It has been remarked that the same is true as regards the Englishman and Charles Dickens. W. M. Hughes, acting prime minister of Australia, goes through this and asserts that Dickens had an important influence on Australian democracy, and through men who read him and loved him, men imbued his hatred of shams and humbugs, who wanted freer and better conditions, to have some other place to look to than the workhouse, had made Australia what it is today.

If the suffragettes would take to smashing big hats it would be something worth while.

One of the things that fail to come to him who waits is the money he loaned to his friends.

Col. Bryan is mentioned as the possible head of every cabinet office.

Will the Hartford Herald please name the prominent Bull Moose who are seeking pie at the county election.

Hon. A. O. Stanley seems to be more afraid of a little temperance measure than he is of a whole field full of steel magnates.

Looks like Uncle Sam will some time be compelled to annex Mexico. We would much rather have it than some of our other possessions.

Hodgenville, with a population of 144, can get $100 for a public building site why can't Mr. Johnson do something for Hartland which has more than 1,000 population to her credit?

The Hartford Herald is now opposed to fusion between the Progressives and Republicans in Ohio county because it will be injuring the Taft men wrong. However is this the real reason?

According to the Hartford Herald the Bull Moose want to fuse in Ohio county to get the offices. Well, what are the twenty or thirty gentlemen running for whom you have announced in your paper?

Gov. McWayne makes himself ridiculous in trying to shield his party from extravagance by laying the blame on the session of the legislature before the last. Both were overwhelming Democratic.

An Owensboro paper charges that Ohio county is giving the smallpox to Owensboro. This will no doubt be rare news to citizens of our country. Everybody knows that contagious diseases generally travel this way from Owensboro, and anyway it would take a long time to even on the score.

After conferences between the committees of the Progressive and Republican factions in Michigan, a state convention under the name of the Republican party was held in Lansing. Tuesday, to name candidates for Supreme Court justices and minor offices. But the platform adopted contained endorsements of the initiative and referendum, the recall, but not applied to judges, conservation and a rearrangement of Southern States' representation in the national convention of the party.

The Hartford Herald which assumes to be guardian for the Republican party in Ohio Co., is quick to warn the members of that organization that the Bull Moose are about to hog all the best county offices on the ticket, but eventually consoles itself by assuming that Taft men "won't support the ticket anyhow." Of course the Democratic ticket is none of our business but we venture the opinion that the Herald will have troubles of its own in plenty before November.

This is the whole story in a nutshell. The farmer wants higher prices, the wage-earner wants higher wages, the storekeeper wants higher profits. President Harrison once said that a cheap coat makes a cheap man. He was right. Things are cheapest when things are depressed. The barefoot country always opens during a panic, in times of prosperity, when wages are highest, when the factories are busy, the farmer sets aside a surplus. Yet everyone wants to buy the other man's products at the lowest prices and sell his own at the highest. How selfish human nature is!

OHIO COUNTY PLANNING FUSION.

The Republican Executive Committee of Ohio county met in Hartford last Saturday, together with many of the men who had supported Mr. Taft in the last Presidential election, and considered plans for a union ticket for county officers, to be voted for at the November election this year. The meeting resulted in the adoption of a set of resolutions which will be submitted to a meeting of the Progressive Executive Committee of Ohio county, which has been called to meet in Hartford Saturday, February 22, at 10 a.m.

The consensus of opinion seems to be that if a union of the forces is brought about it will be on a plan similarly adopted by the Progressives and Republicans in the State of Michigan last week, whereby they took the Republican emblem upon a Progressive platform. Republicans of Ohio county, almost to a man, are in favor of Progressive principles, and the only difference last fall was a question of who was entitled to the nomination for President, Taft or Roosevelt, so far as the local voters were concerned.

THOSE APPROPRIATIONS.

After all this bickering about economic and Republican extravagance the Democratic House has just passed the worst pork barrel public buildings bill in the history of the country. It carries $25,000,000 and a Democratic member pointed out some of the items which will be of interest to the voter who has been accustomed to hear these congressmen on the stump.

"Mr. Fitzgerald cited examples of appropriations which he said were not justified.

"At Marion, Ky.," he said, "a town of 1,627 persons, the limit of costs is $5000. Paintsville, Ky., with a population of 942, gets there for a site Hodgenville, Ky., with a population of 144, gets $1000 for a site."

He went through the bill in this manner, mentioning similar items for nearly every State in the Union. He was particularly hard on several Tennessee items, including one in Representative Austin's district.

He went through the bill in this manner, mentioning similar items for nearly every State in the Union. He was particularly hard on several Tennessee items, including one in Representative Austin's district.

Representative Hardwick was bitter in his denunciation of the bill.

"I believe," he declared, "honestly and candidly, that this is the worst bill of its kind ever reported to an American House of Representatives. I do not think that the palmy days of Cannonism as rotten a profession ever came to this House."

ARGUMENT FOR THE ENEMY.

In the midst of the hard struggle which the Ohio county tobacco growers are having to sell last year crop the Hartford Herald unburdened itself of the following:

"Mr. Thomas Gallaher, the noted tobacco buyer of Belfast, Ireland, who arrived in Owensboro and Henderson recently, has repeatedly declared that the tobacco offered for sale at this season is of poor quality and that he does not care to buy any of it. Some of the tobacco raisers themselves have admitted that, taken as a whole, it is an inferior crop. There seems to be a strong hint in this to all tobacco raisers. The main suggestion conveyed is to raise a better quality of the weed, and then demand and stand for a better price."

Of course Mr. Gallaher declares the tobacco raised by the Ohio county farmers last year is of poor quality. When did any buyer cease to talk that way when he was in the market. It is always so and it is of "poor quality" when it is to be graded. The grower always has to meet and control this sort of talk and it is hard enough without our own local papers giving aid to the buyers by siding with them. The strong hint is that the buyer wants to purchase at a less price, and the suggestion conveyed is for a better and wider organization.

How Will He Do It.

Representative Underwood, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, says it is not the Democratic intention to levy Tariff "taxes" to such an extent that they will prevent importations. Inasmuch as more than half the articles now imported come in duty free, how would Mr. Underwood readjust matters? By lessening the "taxes" on competitive products?—Bath (N. Y.) Courier.

It Depends.

The Democrats will now have almost a clear field for the downward revision of the Tariff. The status, as we see it, is just this: If wages remain up after the Tariff reduction, then the contention of Democracy is correct and that party is in the saddle for many years to come, if a reduction in the Tariff brings a reduction in wages, then it is natural that a reduction in wages will force a reduction in the price of labor's products. In the latter event the conditions will cause the Democratic voters to sit up late and take notice.—Leadfield (Ala.) Standard.

WASHINGTON'S FAREWELL ADDRESS

Half Dozen Writers Had a Hand In It.

Although Early Historians Claim Washington Was Sole Author.

The farewell address of Washington is considered one of the great state papers of the United States and has been admired for its rhetoric and its clear expression of Washingtonian policies. Earlier historians were agreed that Washington was the author and the writer of all that this masterpiece in American politics contained, while as time advanced we find that in this, as in most other great acts in his life, there were others, acting as advisers and writers, who figured in the case.

Washington was always able to gather about him men and minds fit to give expression to his ideas; he was capable of choosing the right one for the task. This form of wisdom stamps him above the ordinary, for to be able to choose the proper agent for a venture is quite as great an accomplishment as to be able to do the work.

Who wrote Washington's farewell address? It was as early as May 29, 1782, while yet in the first term of his presidency, that Washington conceived the idea of writing it. Writers say he came to this decision during his second term of the presidency, but this is an error. A letter to James Madison of May 20, 1782, asks this distinguished writer to assist in preparing the contemplated message.

The letter to Madison contains among other thoughts the following splendid expressions:

"I wish you would turn your thoughts to a valedictory address from me to the public, expressive in plan and modest in terms, that having been honored with the presidential chair and to the best of my abilities contributed to the organization and administration of the government; that having arrived at a period of life when the private walks of it in the shade of retirement become necessary and will be most pleasing to me, and the spirit of the government may render rotation in the elective officers of more convenience with their ideas of liberty and safety, that I take my leave of them as a man, and in bidding them adieu (retaining no other concern than such as will arise from fervent wishes for the prosperity of our country) I will take the liberty at my departure from my civil life, as I formerly did at my military exit, to invoke a continuation of blessings of Providence upon it and upon all those who are the supporters of harmony, order and good government."

Washington then goes on to outline some of the most important features which he hopes Madison would incorporate, and adds: "Under these impressions then permit me to reiterate the request I made to you at our last meeting, namely, to think of the proper time and the best mode of announcing the intention and that that you prepare the letter (farewell address). In revolving this subject my judgment has always been embarrassed. On the one hand a previous declaration to retire not only carries with it the appearance of vanity and self-importance, but it may be construed into a manner to be invited to remain; and on the other hand, to say nothing, implies consent or at any rate would leave the matter in doubt; and to decline afterward might be deemed as bad and uncandid. I would fain carry my request to you further than is asked above, although I am sensible that your compliance must add to your trouble."

Washington continued taking notes on the address and the Madison draft with its annotations was handed over to John Jay, chief justice of the United States supreme court. This wise, diplomatic and judicial mind gave it a thorough overhauling and added many new ideas to it.

Then from the Jay family came the statement that the chief justice assisted in the framing of the address, and then the creditors of the Pickering family affirmed that their ancestor, Timothy Pickering, was a most intimate personal friend of Washington and that when the latter wished something expressed in the best of English he always referred it to Pickering, a man of profound information. Washington had shown his deep confidence in Pickering by making him postmaster general, secretary of war and secretary of state. Later the McHenry family showed a few letters indicating that this great scholar of the revolution had much to do with the final polishing of the address. McHenry was aid de camp to Washington during the revolution. He was one of the framers of the Constitution of the United States and was later made secretary of the war department, and had the honor of having the great fort of Baltimore named in his honor. This man was a close friend of Washington and a careful and trusted official in the Washington family.

"Although this business of correcting so great a state paper had not been hastily dispatched, yet aware of the consequences of such a paper, I suggested giving it a further critical examination; but he (Hamilton) declined it, saying he was pressed for time and was anxious to return the draft to the president without delay."

Jay agreed and the reviewing was completed at that sitting. But Jay wrote to the president later indicating a number of the newer thoughts which had occurred to him since the corrections had been sent. The president then had the address copied several times and turned over to such grammarians and rhet

The large merchandise store of the Centertown Mercantile Co., of Centertown, was totally destroyed by fire Sunday night between 9 and 11 o'clock. It seems that the fire originated in the clothing room, which was a side room to the main building. Nothing in the store was saved from the fire, with the exception of the hooks and accounts of the firm as the fire had gained great headway before discovered. The loss of stock is estimated at about $10,000, covered with $7,000 insurance. The building was owned by Rowe and Morton and valued about $3,000 with no insurance. The origin of the fire is a mystery as there had been no fire in the store since the Saturday before.

PORK BARREL GIVES KENTUCKY GOOD DEAL

Number of Sites Are Provided for While Appropriations for Buildings Are Generous.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The Public Buildings Bill, commonly known as the pork barrel, was reported to the House today by the Public Buildings and Grounds Committee.

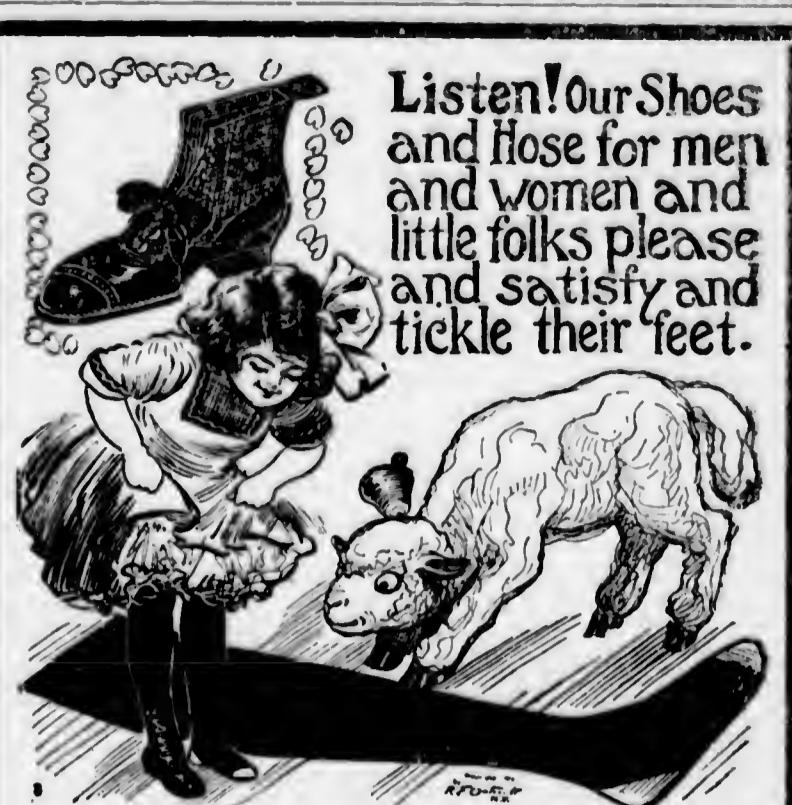

Kentucky fared well in the bill as reported. The following items are contained in the bill for the completion of public buildings under construction in Kentucky.

Postoffice at Hopkinsville, $20,000; postoffice at Middleboro, $25,000; postoffice at Georgetown, $30,000. For the erection of a second story on the public building at Winchester $30,000 is provided.

The erection of public buildings on the sites already purchased at Ashland at a cost of $30,000, and at Shelbyville at a cost of $50,000 is provided for.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to purchase a site and contract for the erection of buildings at Marion and Glasgow. The former appropriation is $70,000 and the latter $60,000.

Sites for public buildings in the following Kentucky towns are provided for: Madisonville, $10,000; Central City, $7,500; Harrodsburg, $10,000; Eminence, $8,000; Paintsville, $8,000; Pikeville, $5,000; Prestonsburg, $5,000; Murray, $5,000; Hodgenville, $5,000, and Elizabethtown $7,500. The sixteen Kentucky items contained in the bill carry appropriations aggregating $297,000.

Warned By Night Riders.

Morganfield, Ky., Feb. 17.—James Lee, one of the most prominent members of the Stemping District Tobacco Association in this county, found a bundle of switches at his door this morning with a note attached warning him to resign at once from the County Board of the Association or take the consequences.

The erection of public buildings on the sites already purchased at Ashland at a cost of $30,000, and at Shelbyville at a cost of $50,000 is provided for.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to purchase a site and contract for the erection of buildings at Marion and Glasgow. The former appropriation is $70,000 and the latter $60,000.

Sites for public buildings in the following Kentucky towns are provided for: Madisonville, $10,000; Central City, $7,500; Harrodsburg, $10,000; Eminence, $8,000; Paintsville, $8,000; Pikeville, $5,000; Prestonsburg, $5,000; Murray, $5,000; Hodgenville, $5,000, and Elizabethtown $7,500. The sixteen Kentucky items contained in the bill carry appropriations aggregating $297,000.

This action the county union approved, but some of the members appeared much aroused over the matter.

A few nights ago at a tobacco meeting an effort was made to have Lee take the oath of secrecy, but he refused to do so. He prefers to look upon the matter as a joke, but some of his neighbors and friends are urging him to take all precautions to prevent an attack.

Lexington Voters To Face Lexington, Ky., Feb. 15.—At a meeting here this afternoon of independent Democrats, old line Republicans and Roosevelt adherents in perpetuation of fusion movements started here nearly four years ago. It was decided to put a fusion ticket in the field for State and county offices in the November election. Senator J. T. Tunis was chosen chairman of temporary organization with County Surveyor John T. Gunn, temporary secretary. Beyond merely deciding to put a ticket in the field and announcing the purpose to take steps as a unit and cement all confiding elements of the three parties into a solid working phalanx for a hard fight on Democrats, no definite steps were taken.

SPECIAL DEMONSTRATION

— AND SALE ON —

Great Majestic Ranges

One Week Only February 24 to March 1, 1913 One Week Only

SAVE $8.00

As a special inducement during our demonstration week only, with every MAJESTIC RANGE sold (prices always the same) we will give free one handsome set of ware as illustrated here.

Every piece of this ware is the best of its kind. Not a piece that is not needed in every kitchen. It cannot possibly be bought for less than $8.00. This ware is on exhibition at our store. DON'T FAIL TO SEE IT.

SPECIAL

All during this week a special demonstrator direct from the MAJESTIC FACTORY will be glad to show you "ALL ABOUT RANGES"—SHOW YOU why the MAJESTIC is the best range on earth at any price.

COME, IF YOU INTEND TO BUY OR NOT

EDUCATION lies in KNOWING

THINGS—KNOW why the oven of a range is heated—KNOW how the water is heated—HOW the top is heated—WHY the MAJESTIC uses so little fuel—KNOW how a range is made inside and outside. This education may serve you in the future. DON'T OVERLOOK a chance to KNOW THINGS shown by one who knows. COME.

SET OF WARE FREE

MAJESTIC RANGES ARE MADE IN ALL SIZES AND STYLES

Which Shall It Be?

Do you intend to continue laboring, burning valuable fuel and destroying high-priced food with that old worn out cook stove?

You know that old stove eats up a lot of fuel each year.

You know you have trouble in getting it to bake just right, in fact, spoil a batch of bread every once in a while—you know it costs considerable for yearly repairs.

Stop and think and figure. Wouldn't it pay you to buy a good range—a range with a reputation—

The Great Majestic Malleable and Charcoal Iron Range?

You make no mistake in buying the GREAT MAJESTIC—it's the range with THE REPUTATION—ask your neighbors. Then, too, it's made just right and of the right kind of material—MALLEABLE AND CHARCOAL IRON—riveted together practically air tight—lined with pure asbestos board—parts being malleable can't break—has a movable reservoir and an oven that don't warp—that's why the MAJESTIC uses so little fuel, bakes just right every day in the year (browns bread just right all over without turning), heats 15 gallons of water while breakfast is cooking—properly handled lasts a lifetime, and costs practically nothing for repairs.

Don't buy the range you expect to last a lifetime "unsighted unseen;" you'll be sure to be disappointed. Come to our store during demonstration week, see the GREAT MAJESTIC—have its many exclusive features explained—find out why the MAJESTIC is 300 per cent stronger than other ranges where most ranges are weakest.

DON'T OVERLOOK THE DATE. THIS IS A SPECIAL INVITATION TO YOU AND YOUR FRIENDS AND NEIGHBORS

Surprise Birthday Dinner.

On Tuesday, Feb. 21, about 9:30 o'clock, according to previous arrangements, regardless of the steady downpour of rain, the neighbors, friends and relatives of J. Hurch Taylor began to gather at the home of his father, John W. Taylor, for the purpose of celebrating Hurch's birthday. Not until several had arrived did he realize what it all meant, and to say he was surprised would be but putting it mildly. All came with well filled baskets, the contents of same consisting of the following good things: Roasted ham, baked hens and ducks, cranberries, macaroni, ban-nann salad, salmon salad, potato salad, sweet and sour pickles, jellies and various kinds of cakes with grape juice and whipped cream, and many other things.

The ladies presented Mr. Taylor with a nice worsted friendship quilt of which he was very proud. The afternoon was spent in singing and social conversation with a short well chosen talk by Rev. Royster, of Cen-tertown, and prayer by Rev. Mell, of Beaver Dam. All went away feeling that it was a day well spent for true happiness is obtained by an honest effort to make others happy. The following named persons were present:

Rev. and Mrs. Alexander Royster, Centertown; Rev. and Mrs. A. L. Mell, W. P. Leach, wife and son Eldred, Mrs. Jno. M. Leach, Mrs.

E. P. Stevens and daughter Nonn,

W. R. Taylor, wife and sons, Thompson and Edward; Mrs. Ola Chin, R. Lee Taylor, wife and three sons

Lilburn, Claude and Myron; John W.

Taylor, P. H. Taylor, Henry Taylor, Hurch Taylor, H. L. Taylor, R.

A. Hoekier, Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert L. Taylor, Misses Effie Alford, Era Taylor, Belle Taylor, Clara Aileen Black,
